

Collingwood Golf Course

Grow in Assistant

The Bragg Lumber Company is seeking the services of a Grow in Assistant for its new golf development in Collingwood Corner, Nova Scotia. This Golf course is designed by Canadian Architect Jeff Mingay and is currently under construction with seeding activities about to begin.

Compensation will be based on experience.

Grow in direction will be provided by John Mills. You will at times assist and take directions from the finish construction superintendent when help is needed with finish construction activities.

Housing will be provided.

Start date will be as soon as logistically feasible and employment will last through to site close up before winter.

This is a great opportunity for someone who is looking to gain key experience in the development of a golf course. You will have the chance to see and participate in all aspects and steps in the construction process. The primary task will be to water, fertilize and mow the new golf holes as they start to grow. You will also be tasked with supervising a small crew of labours in helping with the grow in activities.
